Emojis im (Privat-)Recht

Emojis are omnipresent - the law is also increasingly confronted with them. This is evidenced by an impressive, constantly growing number of judgments from Germany and abroad as well as from various areas of law. Matthias Pendl explains the technical and (psycho-) linguistic background to the colourful, expressive symbols, analysing their significance in selected areas of private law.

Matthias Pendl Geboren 1989, Studium der Rechtswissenschaften an der Karl-Franzens-Universität Graz; 2017 Promotion; Wissenschaftlicher Referent am Max-Planck-Institut für ausländisches und internationales Privatrecht in Hamburg.
