

Normativität - Religion - Mobilität

Edited by Bernhard Sven Anuth, Michael Droege and Stephan Dusil

Every religion is characterised by a common belief among its followers. This belief requires a certain commitment in order to be able to create common ground and thus community, and said commitment is created by beliefs that often have a normative character. Such identity-creating beliefs were shaped and formed not least in the confrontation with other denominations and/or religions. The encounter with the religious or confessional other thus generates normative processes of reassurance of one's own convictions and practices as well as the negotiation of claims to recognition resulting from the encounter. Such processes of readjustment were and are triggered in particular by encounters with the foreign, which in turn are promoted by mobility and migration. The contributions in this volume explore these normative processes from the internal perspective of religious communities, from the perspective of interreligious encounters and from the perspective of the state's religious constitutional order.

Michael Droege ist Inhaber des Lehrstuhls für Öffentliches Recht, Verwaltungsrecht, Religionsverfassungs- und Kirchenrecht sowie Steuerrecht an der Universität Tübingen.
<https://orcid.org/0000-0003-3551-5920>

Stephan Dusil ist Professor für Bürgerliches Recht, Deutsche Rechtsgeschichte, Juristische Zeitgeschichte und Kirchenrecht an der Universität Tübingen.
<https://orcid.org/0000-0003-1406-813X>

Bernhard Sven Anuth ist Professor für Kirchenrecht an der Universität Tübingen.
<https://orcid.org/0000-0003-4170-5245>

2022. VIII, 227 pages. URR 3

ISBN 978-3-16-161998-4
sewn paper €74.00

ISBN 978-3-16-161999-1
DOI 10.1628/978-3-16-161999-1
eBook PDF €74.00

---

Order now:

<https://www.mohrsiebeck.com/en/book/normativitaet-religion-mobilitaet-9783161619984/>
Phone: +49 (0)7071-923-17
Fax: +49 (0)7071-51104